His Word doesn't change (Matthew 24:25; Revelation 22:18-19), and His Son never changes (Hebrews 13:8). God hasn't changed His mind, His Word, His standards or His plans for us. If we really love our family and friends, we need to tell them the truth. We have to tell them the truth. To do anything less would be eternally unloving.

That's the essence of biblical faith, including faith in the existence of God. We trust in what is known, leading us to action, despite a less-than-absolute understanding (Hebrews 11:6). Whether or not one acknowledges God, the decision involves faith. Belief in God does not require blind faith (John 20:29), but neither can it overcome ...
