The work is a brilliant display of Nietzsche's talents as a music critic, and includes memorabile ridicule of Wagner's theatrical style, reflections on redemption via art, a "physiology of art," and discussion of the virtues associated, respectively, with ascending and descending life energies.

Nietzsche's Life and Works - Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy

The outgoing, former art instructor in the Dracut school system took time out from a poster of Ellis Island to explain her philosophy: "If you love your job, you never have to work a day in your life. I'm here most of the day. I probably could get a lot more accomplished without the interruptions."
