The Second Crusade (1147-1149 CE) was a military campaign organised by the Pope and European nobles to recapture the city of Edessa in Mesopotamia which had fallen in 1144 CE to the Muslim Seljuk Turks.

Second Crusade - Ancient History Encyclopedia

The Second Crusade was the second major crusade launched from Europe. The Second Crusade was started in response to the fall of the County of Edessa in 1144 to the forces of Zengi. The county had been founded during the First Crusade by King Baldwin I of Jerusalem in 1098. While it was the first Crusader state to be founded, it was also the first to fall. The Second Crusade was announced by Pope Eugene III, and was the first of the crusades to be led by European kings, namely Louis VII of France

Yet, Jonathan Phillips's book does fill an important gap. In fact, the last major monograph on the 'Second Crusade' was published in 1866 (Bernhard Kugler, Studien zur Geschichte des zweiten Kreuzzugs [Stuttgart]). A new synthesis was therefore urgently needed which would fully take into account the modern studies in history of the Crusades.
