Launched in 1972 as the replacement for its popular and graceful little 850 Spider, Fiat's X1/9 represented a radical break with the past. Turin's new junior sports car might have been based on the bread-and-butter 128 sedan, Fiat's first front-wheel-drive production car, but its mid-engine design and razor-edged wedge styling offered buyers a bit of supercar technology at an affordable price.
